Mobile Counter-IED Interactive Trainer (MCIT)

- MCIT is a Joint Research and Development effort funded by JIEDDO JCOE with support from RDECOM STTC to create a mobile system for Counter-Improvised Explosive Device (C-IED) training
- The primary development of the system was done by the Institute for Creative Technologies, University of Southern California

Unconventional Warfare – But the Details Change

TECHNOLOGY DRIVEN. WARFIGHTER FOCUSED.

- Why? – IEDs are the leading cause of enemy-inflicted casualties
- When? – Need to train now, and prepare for tomorrow's threats
- Where? – Today, Afghanistan. Tomorrow, Honduras? Indonesia?
- What? – Counter-IED concepts and “6th sense”
- How? – Mobile immersive/interactive experiences

MCIT Overview

- Program Objective – to provide Warfighters with enhanced ability to recognize and defeat IEDs under a variety of complex attack scenarios
- Training includes understanding of –
 - Basic components and functions of an IED
 - Common initiating systems
 - Terrain/environmental features used to mask IED's and initiating systems
 - Proper implementation of the appropriate C-IED procedures

MCIT Concept

- Modularized Mobile Trainer contained within four - 40' Container Boxes (CB)
- CBs are transformed into an immersive, self-paced training environment that includes:
 - Static content displays; current content focused on Afghanistan
 - Hands-on, “Red vs. Blue,” game-based simulation
 - Mixed reality
 - Narrative storylines using video
- Target audience – junior officers (LTs/CPTs) and enlisted Soldiers (E1-E5s)
- Total estimated contact time – 90 minutes
 - 15 minutes/trailer for CBs 1 – 3
 - 45 minutes for CB4 (3 x 15 min sessions)
- What makes this unique – training is presented from insurgent’s viewpoint

Learning Objectives

- Derived from CENTCOM, C-IED Training & Capabilities Guidance
- MCIT is a cognitive training experience...we are not teaching motor skills

CB1 – Individual Tasks and Identification

"This is Nothing New - You Can Win"

Static displays

- History of IEDs
- IED categories
- Suicide devices
- IED components
- IED indicators

Narrative character

Omar (insurgent)

- Insurgent mindset
- Red TTPs
- Components
- Devices
- Emplacement

Narrative character

Owen (US Soldier)

- Personal experiences
- Blue TTPs
- Red TTPs
- Offensive mindset

CB4 – Post Exercise Review What Constitutes Success?

- Blue

- UXO missed/detected and reported
- 9-line correctness and timeliness (IED/UXO; CASEVAC)
- Civilian casualties
- Enemy casualties
- Patterns
- Standoff distance maintained
- Staying observant
- CREW device activation

- Red

- Ambush site selection
- IED types selection
- Enemy casualties
- Video footage of attacks

- Questions

- Version 0.5 delivered to Ft. Bragg and Camp Pendleton for Operational Assessment
- Version 1.0 delivered to Camp Shelby where there are currently two BCT's scheduled for training prior to deployment
- Training on average of 50 – 80 Warfighters per site, per day
- Direct Quote
 - “My name is Spc Wilson, a medic from 1/505th PIR 3rd BDE. I was injured during our last deployment, and during the time on Rear Detachment I was brought to help train new soldiers on the IED trainer. Having run multiple missions downrange as a medic with my line platoon, I recognize the amazing system you have put together for training. The program is realistic, informative, and very helpful for the new soldiers. I honestly wish I had been afforded the training involved before I had been sent downrange. The programmer is to be congratulated, and the mission as a whole of this entire operation is a stellar success. Thank you for your time, and please continue to do excellent work.”

The background of the central text area is a large, intense explosion. Bright orange and yellow flames and smoke billow upwards, filling the sky. The scene is set in a dark, possibly urban or industrial environment, with some structures visible in the lower part of the frame.
