

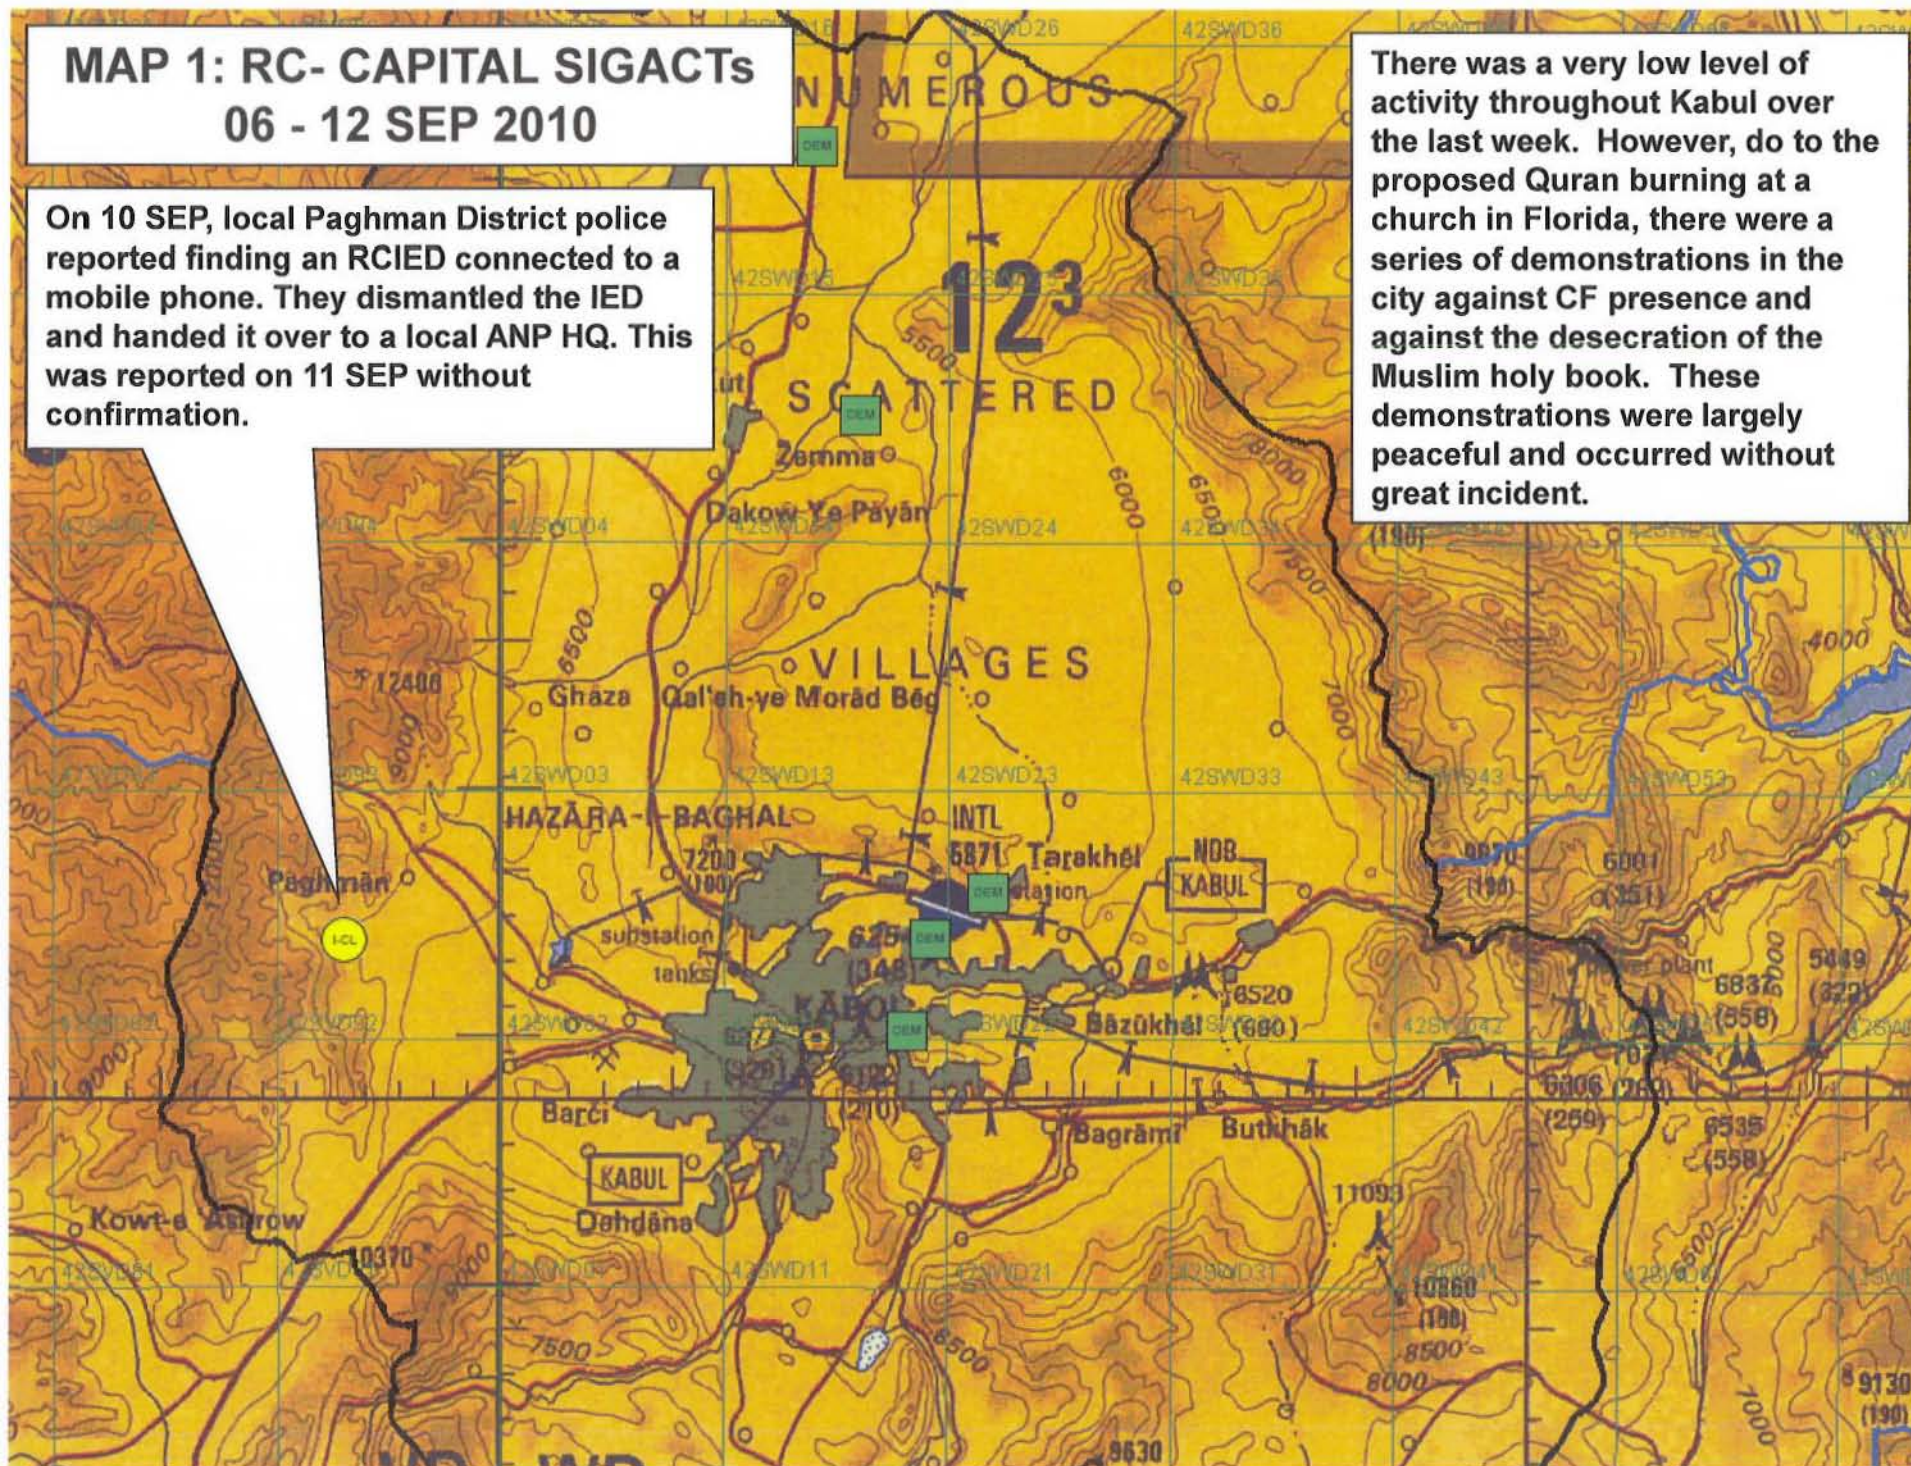

MAP 1: RC- CAPITAL SIGACTs
06 - 12 SEP 2010

On 10 SEP, local Paghman District police reported finding an RCIED connected to a mobile phone. They dismantled the IED and handed it over to a local ANP HQ. This was reported on 11 SEP without confirmation.

There was a very low level of activity throughout Kabul over the last week. However, do to the proposed Quran burning at a church in Florida, there were a series of demonstrations in the city against CF presence and against the desecration of the Muslim holy book. These demonstrations were largely peaceful and occurred without great incident.

MAP 2: RC- NORTH SIGACTs 06 - 12 SEP 2010

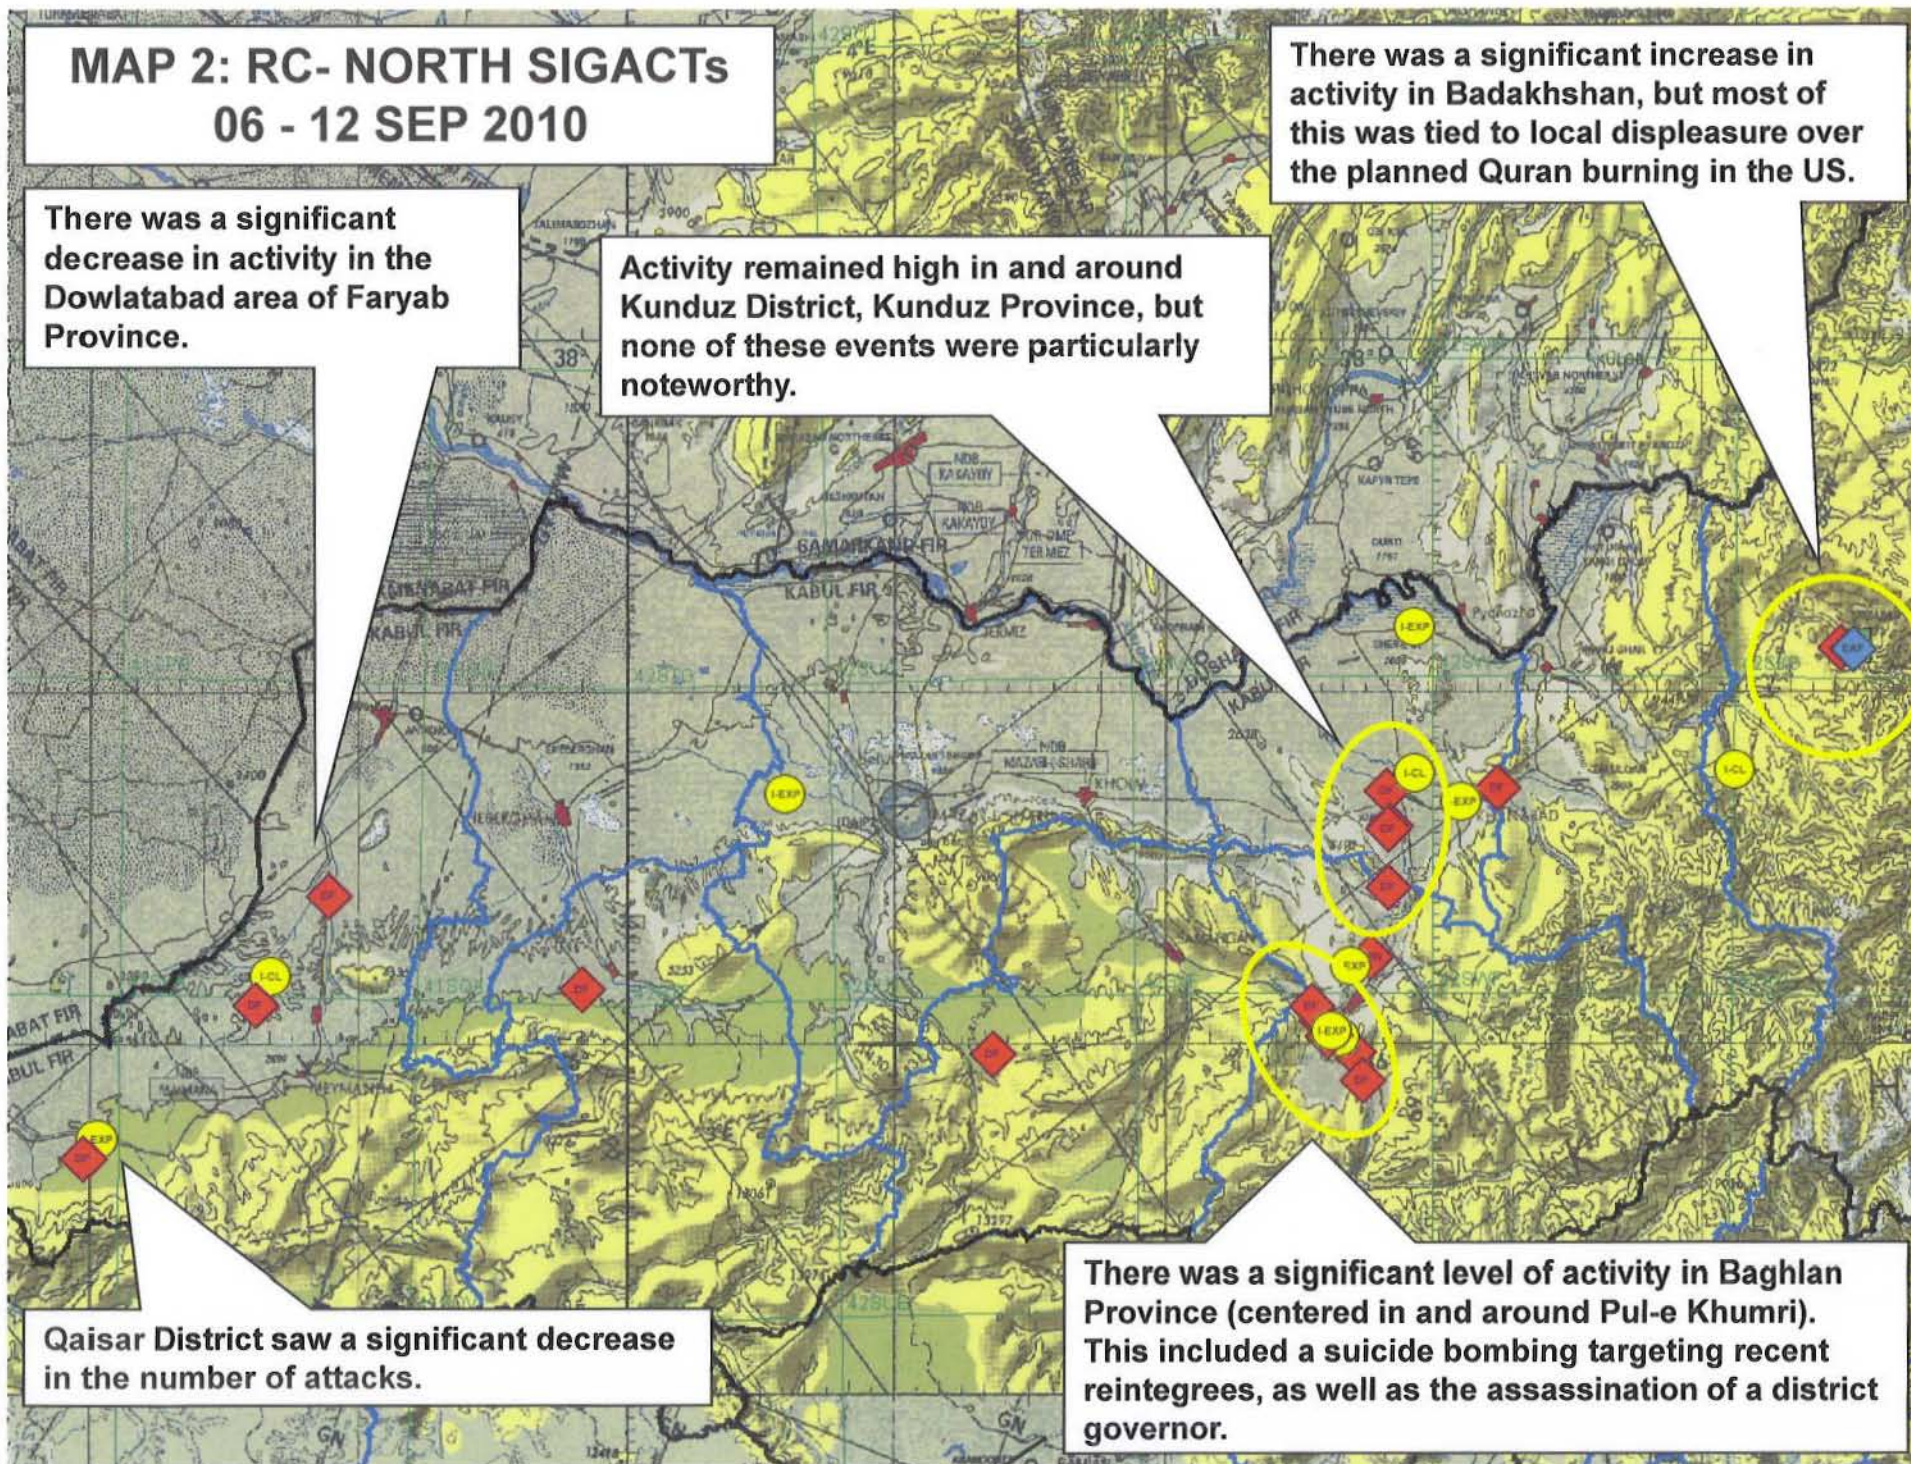

There was a significant decrease in activity in the Dowlatabad area of Faryab Province.

Activity remained high in and around Kunduz District, Kunduz Province, but none of these events were particularly noteworthy.

There was a significant increase in activity in Badakhshan, but most of this was tied to local displeasure over the planned Quran burning in the US.

Qaisar District saw a significant decrease in the number of attacks.

There was a significant level of activity in Baghlan Province (centered in and around Pul-e Khumri). This included a suicide bombing targeting recent reintegrees, as well as the assassination of a district governor.

MAP 3: RC- WEST SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

Daily direct fire attacks in the Marghab River valley.

Bala Boluk District

Demonstration in Farah Rud Village that turned violent on 10 SEP 10.

Delaram region of Faryab

A significant number of direct fire and IED attacks continue to occur in Delaram since its hand over from RC-SW. This is a significant seam in RC-W that is exploited by INS and criminals to smuggle narcotics and weapons.

MAP 4: RC- EAST SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

Insurgents use the terrain in Nuristan, especially along the road from Jalalabad and from Kapisa, to conduct direct fire and IED attacks.

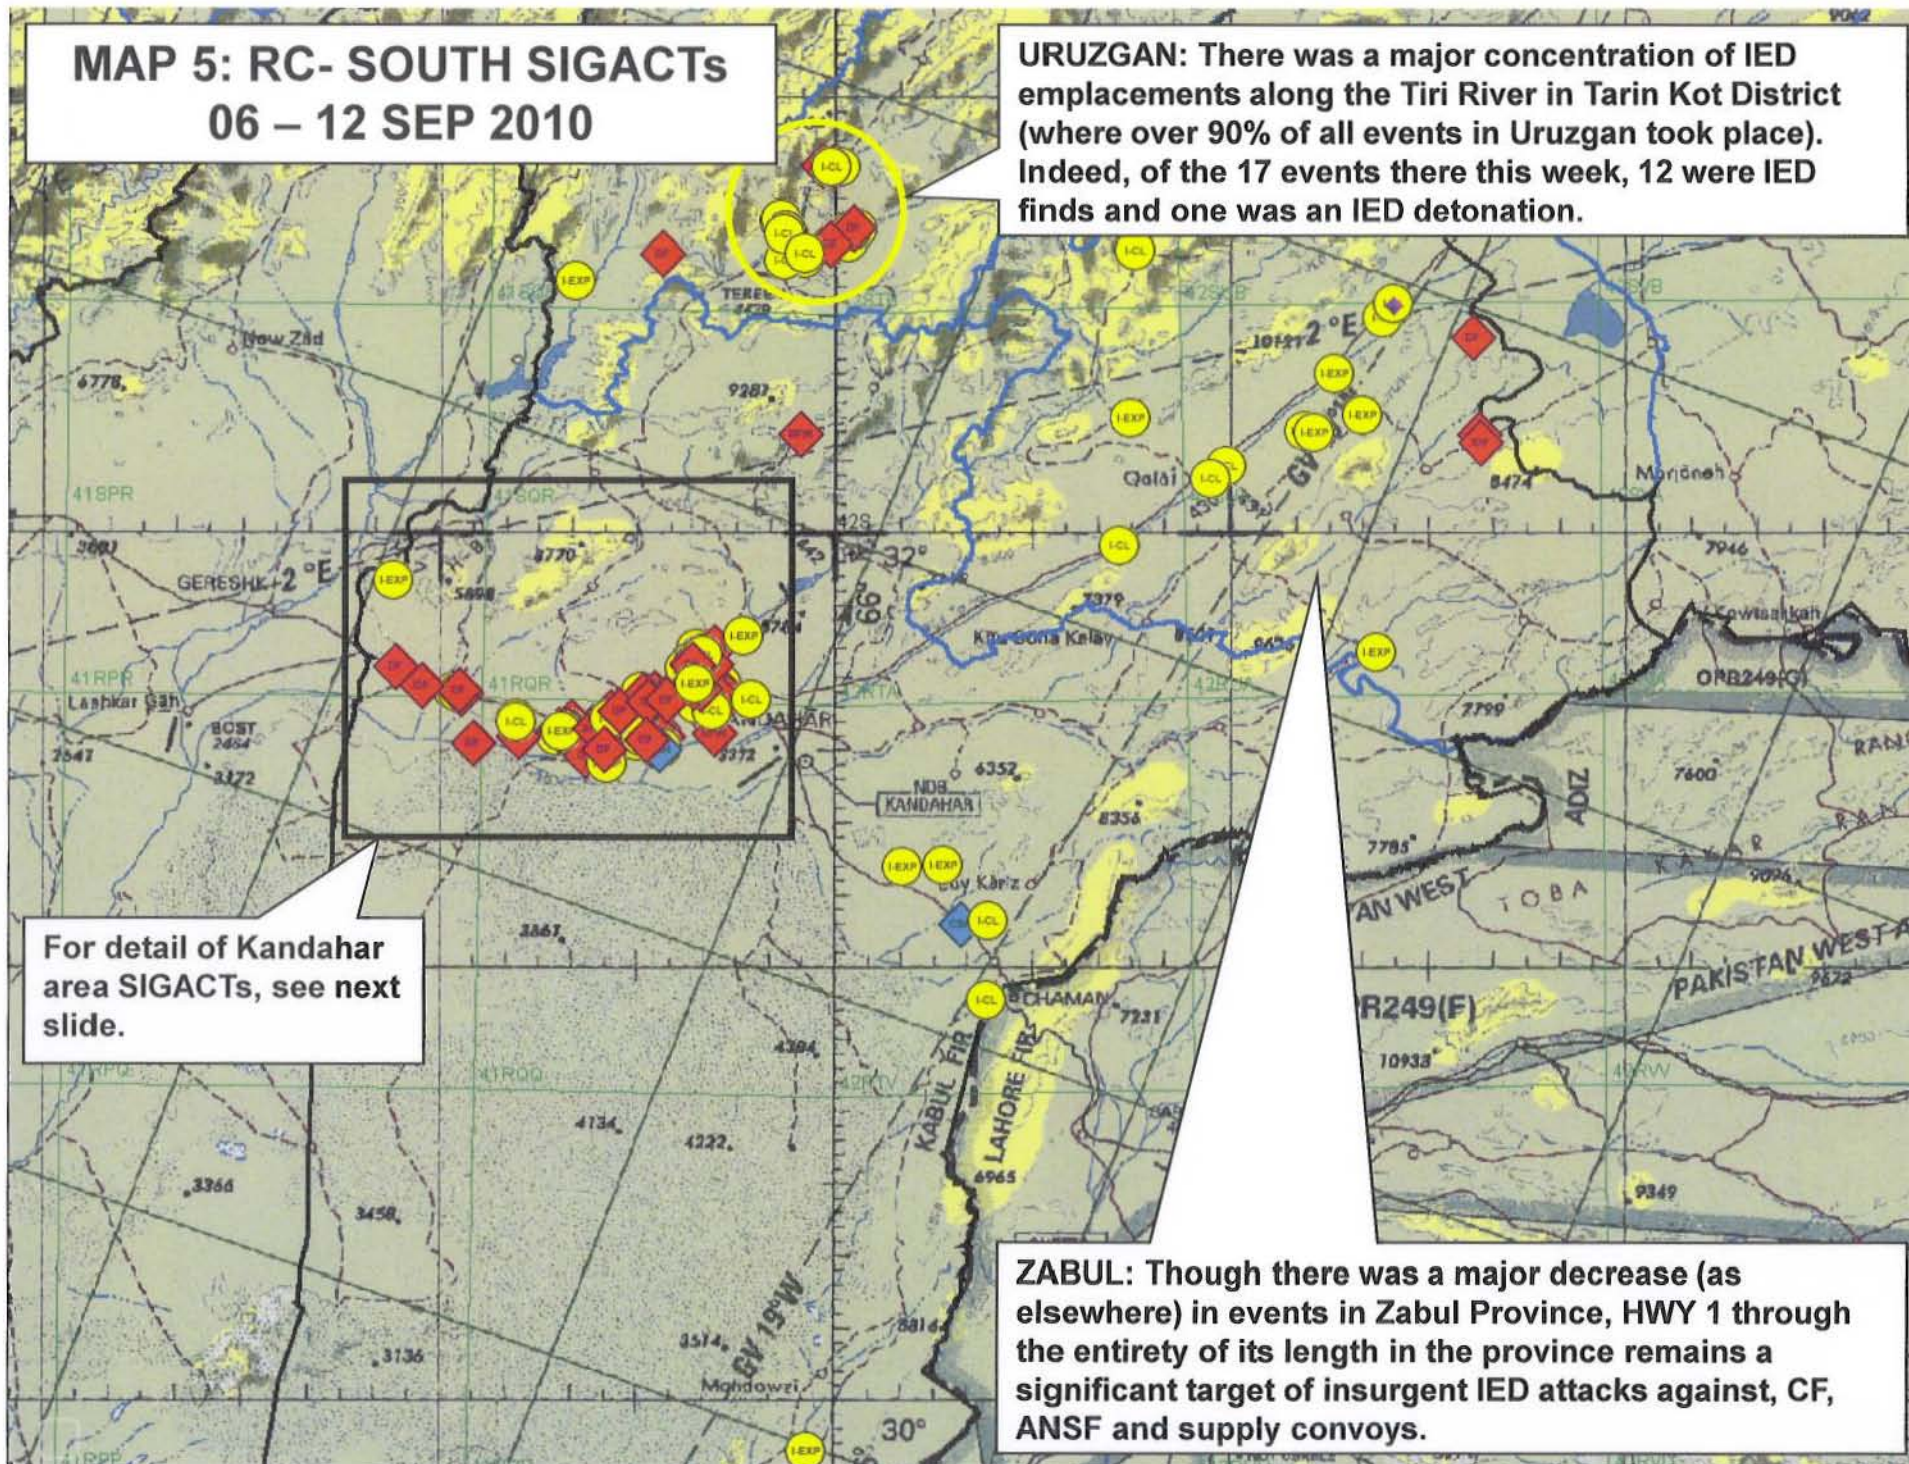

MAP 5: RC- SOUTH SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

URUZGAN: There was a major concentration of IED emplacements along the Tiri River in Tarin Kot District (where over 90% of all events in Uruzgan took place). Indeed, of the 17 events there this week, 12 were IED finds and one was an IED detonation.

For detail of Kandahar area SIGACTs, see next slide.

ZABUL: Though there was a major decrease (as elsewhere) in events in Zabul Province, HWY 1 through the entirety of its length in the province remains a significant target of insurgent IED attacks against, CF, ANSF and supply convoys.

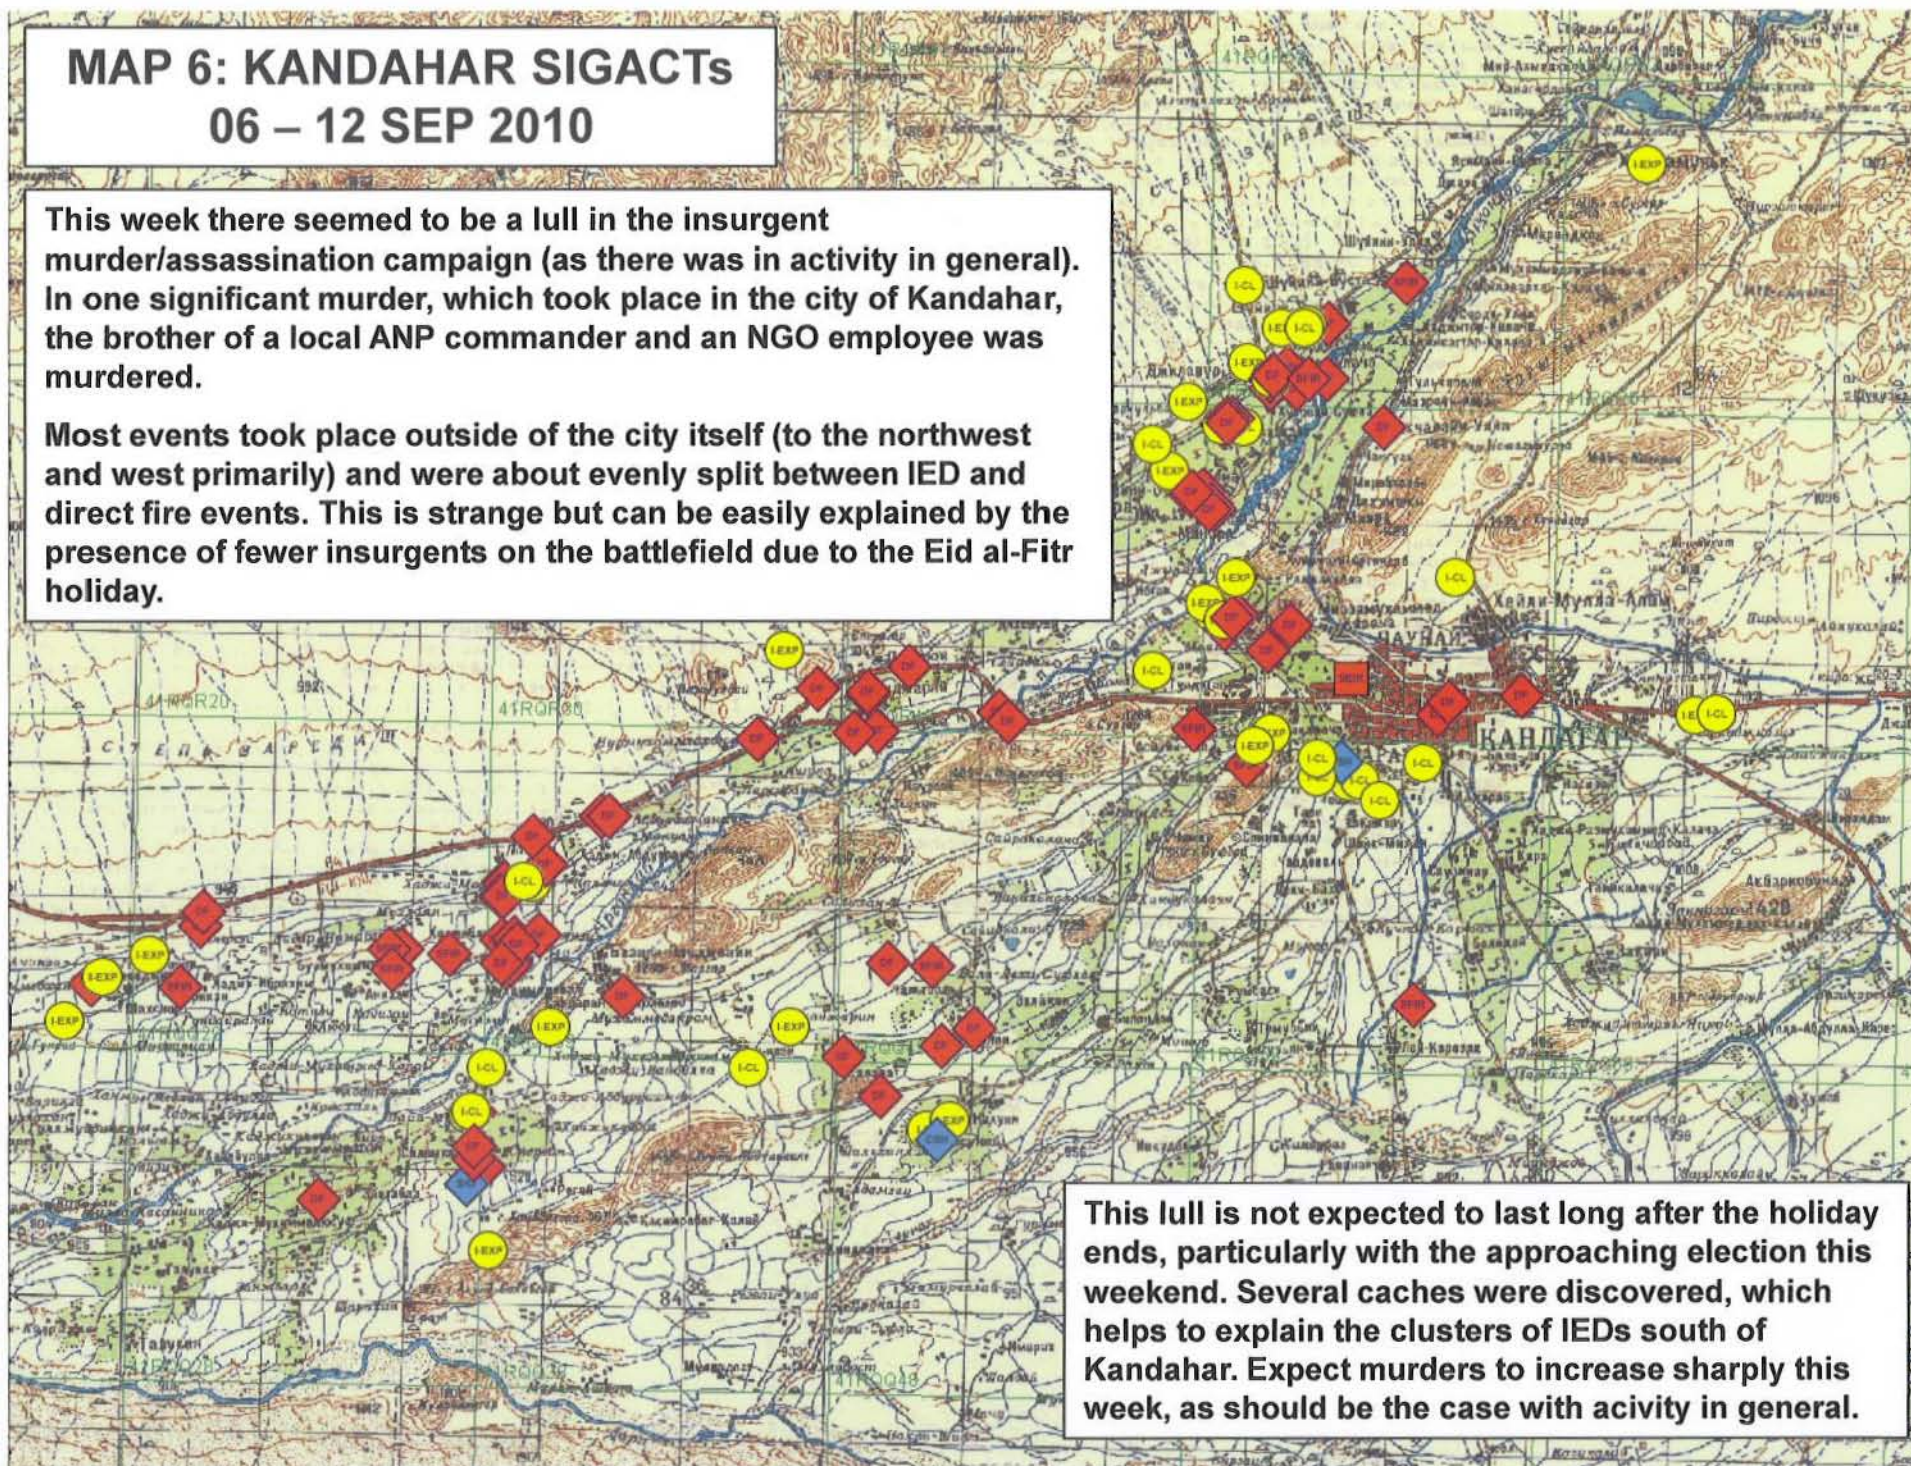

MAP 6: KANDAHAR SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

This week there seemed to be a lull in the insurgent murder/assassination campaign (as there was in activity in general). In one significant murder, which took place in the city of Kandahar, the brother of a local ANP commander and an NGO employee was murdered.

Most events took place outside of the city itself (to the northwest and west primarily) and were about evenly split between IED and direct fire events. This is strange but can be easily explained by the presence of fewer insurgents on the battlefield due to the Eid al-Fitr holiday.

This lull is not expected to last long after the holiday ends, particularly with the approaching election this weekend. Several caches were discovered, which helps to explain the clusters of IEDs south of Kandahar. Expect murders to increase sharply this week, as should be the case with activity in general.

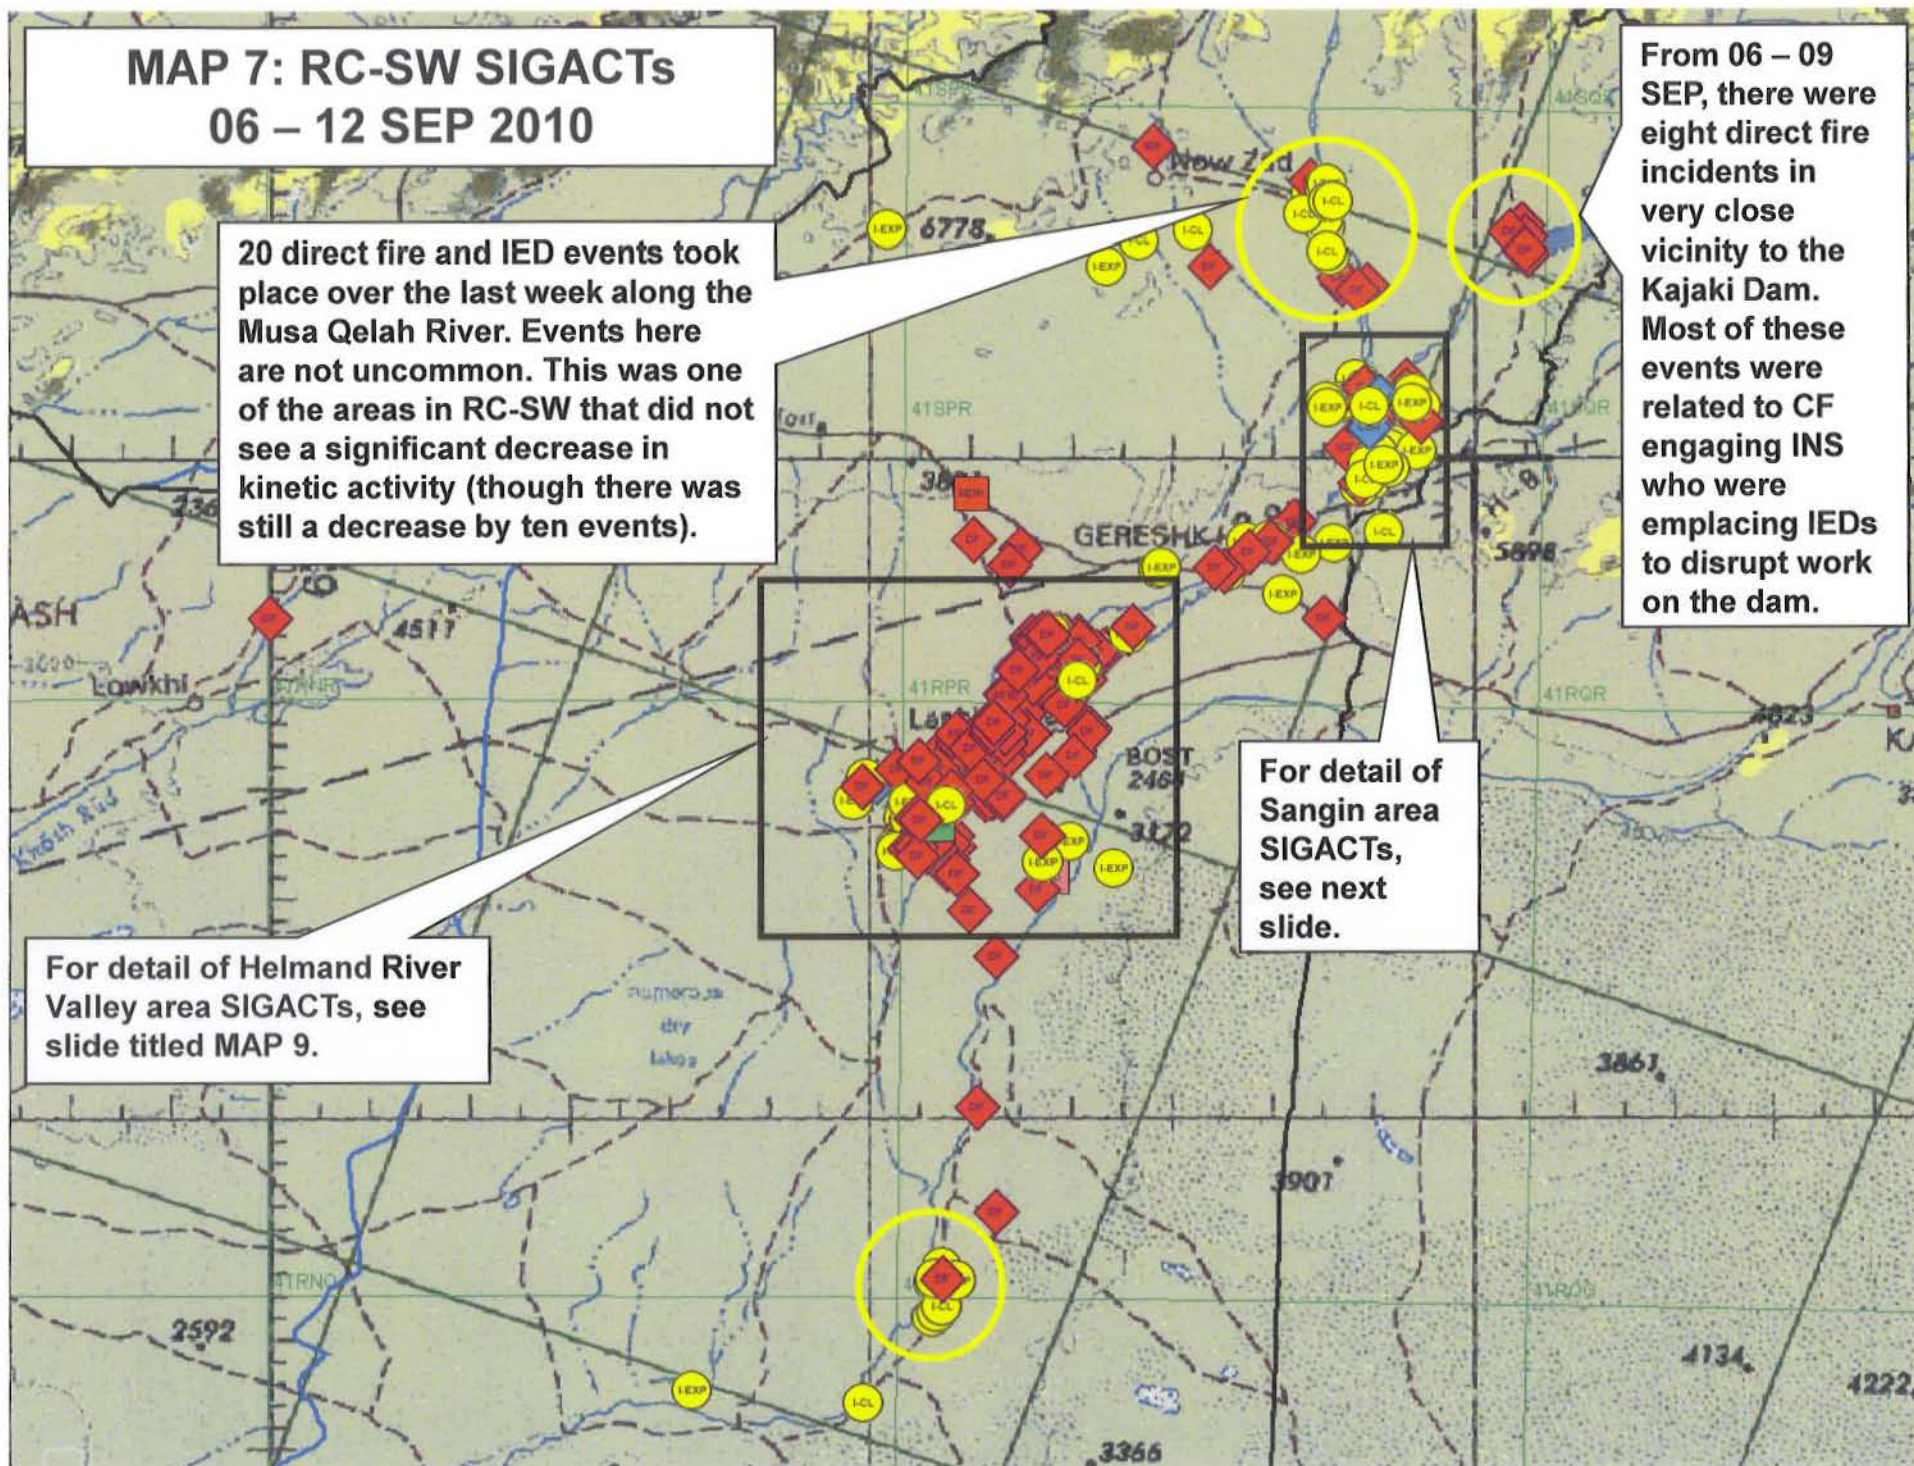

MAP 7: RC-SW SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

20 direct fire and IED events took place over the last week along the Musa Qalah River. Events here are not uncommon. This was one of the areas in RC-SW that did not see a significant decrease in kinetic activity (though there was still a decrease by ten events).

For detail of Helmand River Valley area SIGACTs, see slide titled MAP 9.

From 06 – 09 SEP, there were eight direct fire incidents in very close vicinity to the Kajaki Dam. Most of these events were related to CF engaging INS who were emplacing IEDs to disrupt work on the dam.

For detail of Sangin area SIGACTs, see next slide.

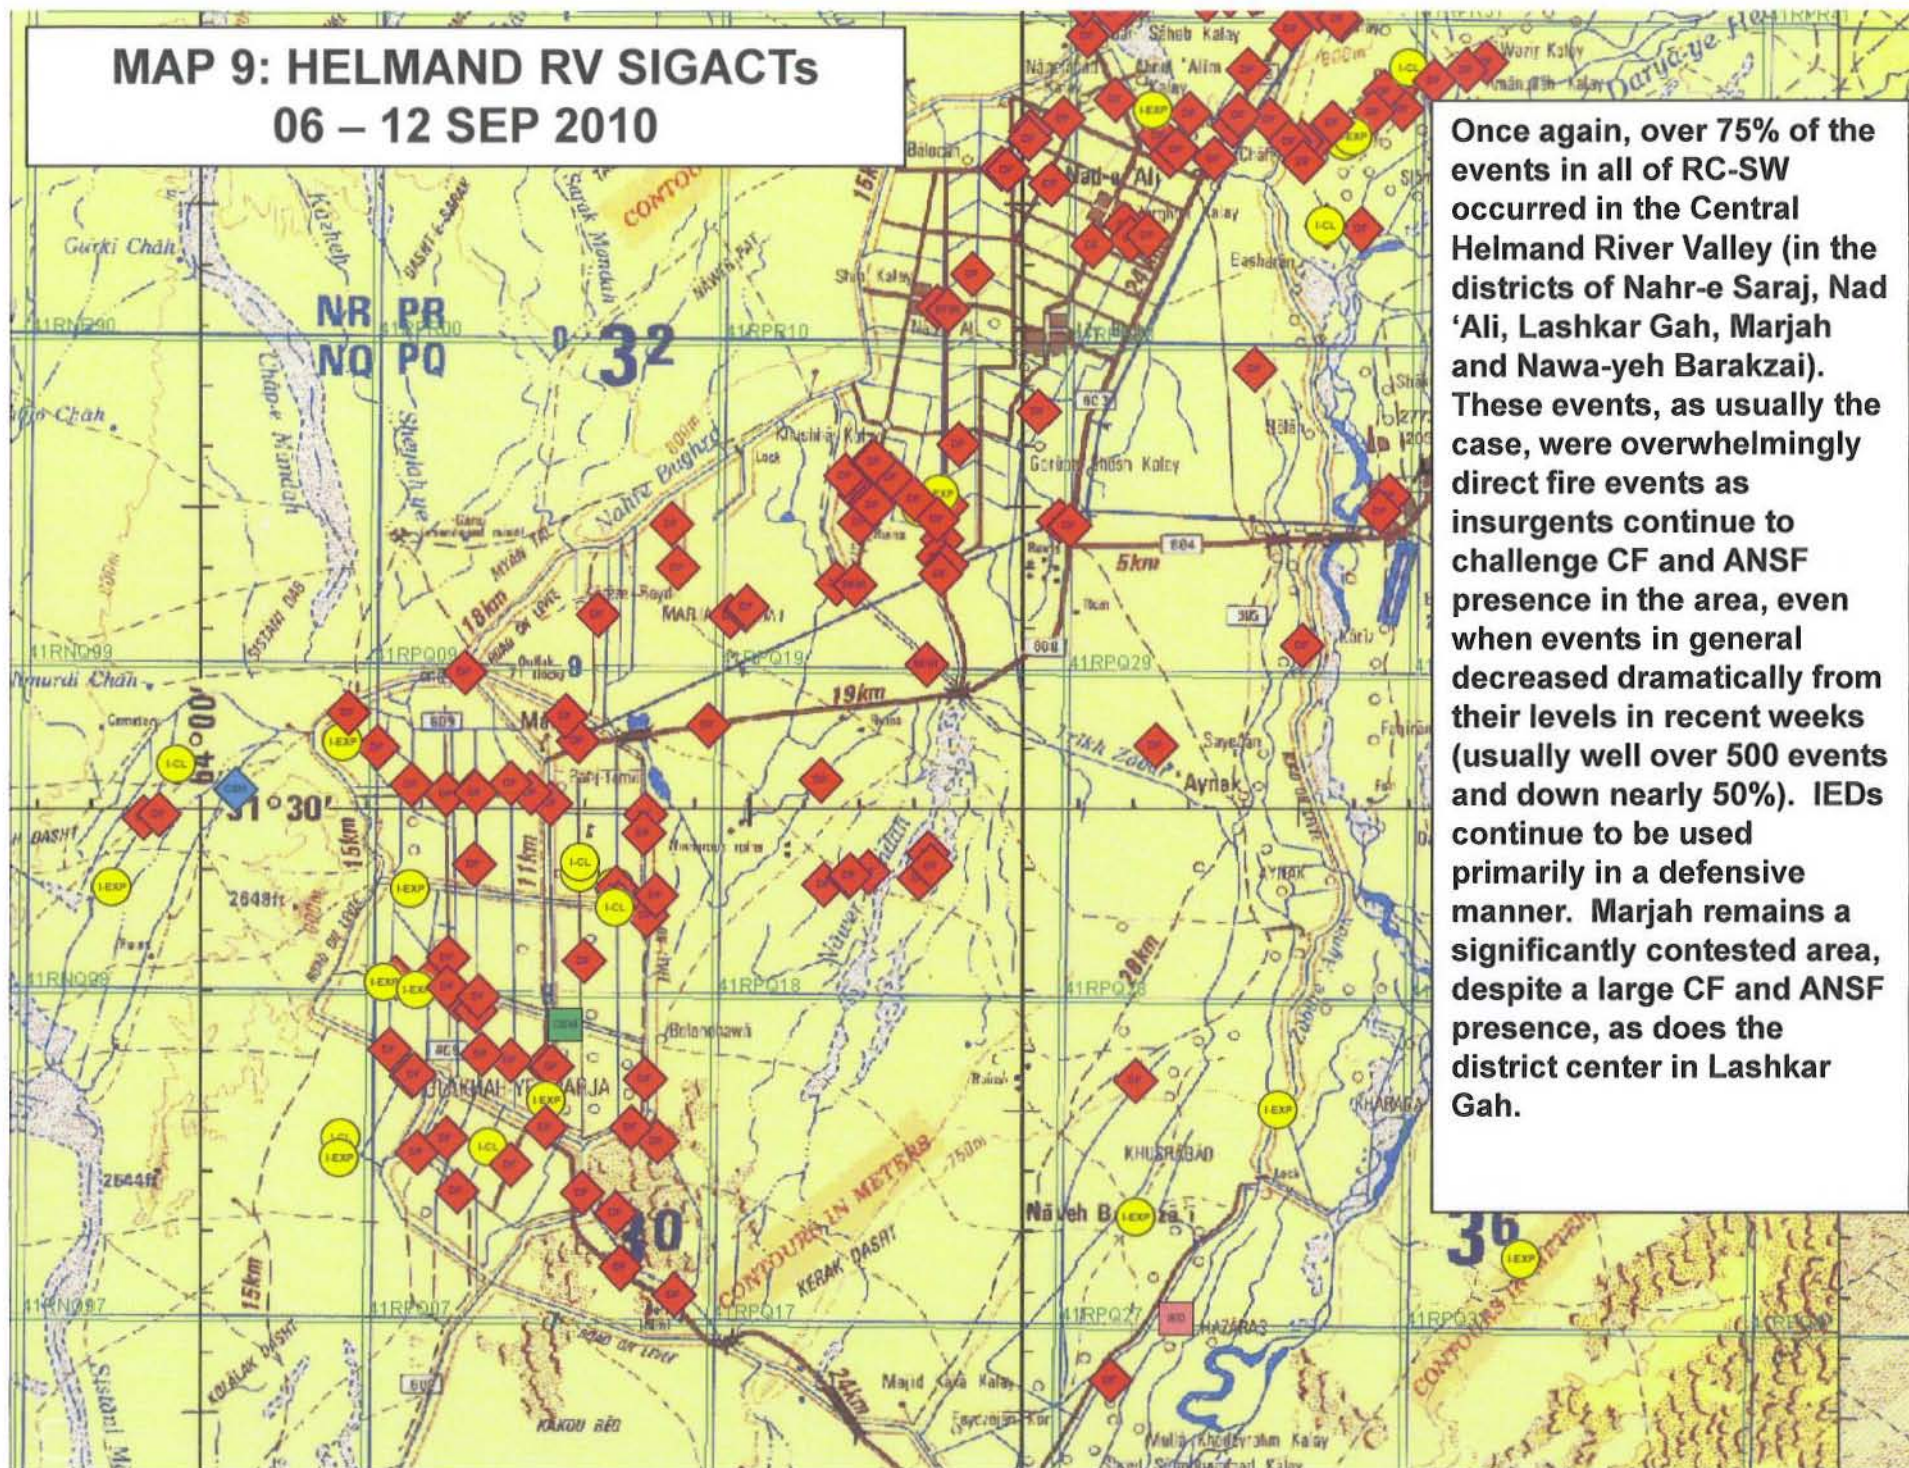

MAP 8: SANGIN SIGACTs
06 – 12 SEP 2010

Events in Sangin District dropped by over two thirds as insurgents took time off to spend the Eid al-Fitr with their families. However, there were still 32 events in this district, accounting for nearly 15% of all events in RC-SW. In a break from the recent past, these events were nearly split evenly between direct fire and IED emplacement events, suggesting insurgents were indeed taking time off from fighting. However, this lull in the violence is no doubt very temporary and events are expected to return to their usual levels within days of the end of Eid al-Fitr and especially as the elections approach on 18 September.

Events in Sangin District dropped by over two thirds as insurgents took time off to spend the Eid al-Fitr with their families. However, there were still 32 events in this district, accounting for nearly 15% of all events in RC-SW. In a break from the recent past, these events were nearly split evenly between direct fire and IED emplacement events, suggesting insurgents were indeed taking time off from fighting. However, this lull in the violence is no doubt very temporary and events are expected to return to their usual levels within days of the end of Eid al-Fitr and especially as the elections approach on 18 September.

MAP 9: HELMAND RV SIGACTs 06 – 12 SEP 2010

Once again, over 75% of the events in all of RC-SW occurred in the Central Helmand River Valley (in the districts of Nahr-e Saraj, Nad 'Ali, Lashkar Gah, Marjah and Nawa-yeh Barakzai). These events, as usually the case, were overwhelmingly direct fire events as insurgents continue to challenge CF and ANSF presence in the area, even when events in general decreased dramatically from their levels in recent weeks (usually well over 500 events and down nearly 50%). IEDs continue to be used primarily in a defensive manner. Marjah remains a significantly contested area, despite a large CF and ANSF presence, as does the district center in Lashkar Gah.